Murphy announces he will seek another term

By WALT HECOX

SUNOL — John D. Murphy, Alameda County First District Supervisor, kicked off his campaign for reelection in 1976 last night at Sunol Valley Golf Course not with a whimper but a considerable bang.

With 600 well wishers looking on and soft music playing in the background Murphy finally annnounced that he was a candidate.

The list of guests at the testimonial dinner sponsored by the "Alameda County labor movement" was as impressive as it was long.

Of course there were some missing faces. Among them the Mayor of Livermore and Valarie Raymond, the determined housewife from the same city who has been campaigning for the seat ever since she lost to Murphy four years ago.

Murphy, as is his custom, has been coy and secretive about his intentions for the past few months and probably did not make up his mind firmly to seek the post he has held 16 years until about two months ago.

At that time, assured that his wife's health was up to standing the rigors of being the spouse of a busy and controversial politician, he made his decision.

Murphy's announcement probably has launched one of the most interesting and clearly divided supervisorial races in Alameda County history.

On one side is Murphy who considers himself to be and is in many ways a liberal Democrat.

On the other a representative of a new breed of liberals who considers the incumbent supervisor ultra conservative.

If the lines between Murphy and his opponent are sharply divided, so too is the district he represents which now includes Fremont, a city largely inhabited by blue collar workers and their satellites, and the Livermore-Amador Valley where PHD's are as common as rocks in the Arroyo Mocho.

Will Gov. Brown appoint Judge Gale's successor?

PLEASANTON — At least three valley attorneys are polling their numbers to determine sentiment about whether or not Pleasanton judge William Gale should retire Dec. 31.

The poll, which is not an official poll by the Valley Bar Association, is believed to have some practical connection with the method of choosing Gale's successor.

If Gale follows through on his announced intention to retire Dec. 31, Governor Edmund Brown Jr, would appoint his successor. A Brown appointee would almost surely be a Democrat and likely a liberal Democrat. But if Gale, a Republican, does not retire until shortly before the June election, the next judge would be selected by valley voters. Obviously a local Republican attorney would have a far better chance at the hands of valley voters than he would with Governor Brown.

Governor Brown's appointments secretary was quoted in the Los Angeles Daily Journal, the legal paper in Los Angeles, as saying that Brown will make many judicial appointments between Jan. 1 and Jan. 10. Anyone appointed judge during that period will not have to stand election for at least two years. A person can be appointed judge after that time, but he or she may have to run in the election next June. The law apparently is not clear on the point.

In a hypothetical example, suppose a judge retires Jan. 15. "A" files for the seat immediately. Ten days later, Governor Brown appoints "B" to the seat. The law reportedly states that "A" could appeal to the registrar of voters to call for an election for the seat. But reportedly Goveor Brown does not agree with that interpretation of the law and he would not agree to an election. Since the law is ambiguous, according to some observers, it is possible "A" would take it to court, hoping for a ruling which would force an election.

The Times tried to reach Judge Gale yesterday for comment about the poll and his retirement plans, but was unable to do so.

STEEPED IN TRADITION, the beautiful old Concannon Winery sign (above) is in danger of extinction. The Livermore Heritage Guild sent a letter to the Alameda County Works Dept. asking that it be excluded from an ordinance requiring it be reduced to 20 square feet. The Olivina sign (below), owned by Lone Star Industries, is also apparently in danger even though it is no longer an active business advertisement.

Extended BART feeder bus hours due Monday

The Bay Area Rapid Transit District's feeder bus service linking the valley with Hayward BART will be extended to 11 p.m. as of Monday.

The extension of service past 8 p.m. will permit valley residents to travel to Bay Area metropolitan and Contra Costa County points and return as late at 11 o'clock.

In addition, new buses will begin to appear this month to replace the older buses which have been in service on "U" and "D" lines since the inception of feeder bus service a year ago.

The 36 new, luxury buses will seat 45 passengers each and have ceiling as well as floor carpeting to eliminate interior noise. Other features of the new suburban-type coaches include recliner seats, large vista windows and automatic climate- control which will maintain a comfortable temperature regardless of outside weather conditions.

On Jan. 1, 1976, the express bus, along with BART trains, will begin permanent late night service when operational funding legislation becomes official. For one day only, Wednesday, Dec. 31, express buses will resume their present schedule of approximately 5:30 a.m. to 8:15 p.m.

On the U-line, final express buses will depart BART's Hayward station at 9:08 p.m. and 11:08 p m. and terminate at 1st Street and North Livermore Avenue in Livermore at 9:58 and 11:58, respectively. Final inbound buses depart from 1st Street and North Livermore Avenue at 8:07 and 10:07 p.m. traveling the regular "U" route of Stanley Boulevard, Santa Rita Road, Valley Avenue, Hopyard Road, Dublin & Regional, and thence to Hayward BART.

On the D line, the last two buses will depart the Walnut Creek BART station at 8:50 and 10:50 p.m. and arrive at their final destination in Dublin at 9:28 and 11:28, respectively. The D buses will keep the same routing through Alamo, Danville, San Ramon and thence via Alcosta, Village Parkway and Dublin Boulevard to Regional in Dublin.

The last buses from Dublin will depart at 9:35 and 11:35 p.m. and arrive at BART's Walnut Creek station at 10:13 p.m. and 12:13 a.m.

Valley residents are reminded that BART rail service will be provided the next three Saturdays from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Accord on connection parceling

PLEASANTON — Attorneys for major developers agreed yesterday about how to parcel out future connections to the Valley Community Services District sewage treatment plant.

Singer, Morrison Homes, H.C Elliott, and Grant Corportion requested the 57 sewer connection permits available now. Judge Robert Bostick ruled in Alameda County Superior Court yesterday that the 57 will be divided so that 22 units will go to Singer and the remaining 35 be apportioned among Morrison Morrison, Elliott, and Grant.

When an additional 216 permits are available at the time the VCSD plant is expanded to 4.4 million gallons per day, the first offer will go to Morrison, Grant and Elliott, reported City Attorney Ken Scheidig. The city atttorney attended the hearing because the city must administer the permits.

Judge Bostick also settled a differing contention between Morrison Homes and the other developers. Morrison felt that developers lost their connection priority if they refused to buy them when their turn came up on the priority list. Morrison agreed yesterday to abandon that position and instead agreed that a developer can pass up his or her connections when available and be asked again. The second asking would also be in order among all those who passed the first time.

Gene Finch announces candidacy for city council

PLEASANTON — Gene Finch made his expected entry into the Pleasanton City Council race yesterday.

Finch emphasized his experience as a local businessman over the past eight years. He is owner of Gene's Flooring and Interiors, 690 Main Street.

"Probably the main thing is the fact I am a local businessman," said Finch. "About 90 per cent of my business is in Pleasanton. My livelihood depends on how this city progresses. I'm very much concerned about every aspect of the community — business. recreation . It's time more business people get involved in city politics. We need more business people — it will help to attract business to the city." Finch will begin his campaign with what he believes is an innovation in local city council campaigns — a teen rap session to learn what teens would like from a city council member. The session will be held at 7:30 p.m. Thursday at the Pleasanton Library.

Finch was an unsuccessful city council candidate two years ago. "I was naive on political issues last time. This time I think that having worked more at length in the community I am more aware now of the problems which exist," he said.

Finch thinks more leadership is needed on the city council. "The ultimate responsibility for city management is the city council. The council in the past has been a rubber stamp for city management," said Finch.

Finch has lived in the valley since 1965 and in Pleasanton since 1967. He was a charter member of the Dublin Chamber of Commerce and Dublin Jaycees and later was active with the Pleasanton Jaycees and Pleasanton Rotary Club. He is a member of the Pleasanton Chamber of Commerce and serves on the board of directors of Pleasanton National Little League. He and his wife, Genie, are members of the First Baptist Church.

City gets $245,000 grant for fees

PLEASANTON — City government received a $245,000 grant yesterday to reimburse most of the cost of hiring Kennedy Engineers to consult on sewage treatment facilities.

City Manager Bill Edgar was elated over the announcement of the grant from Assemblyman Floyd Mori's office. "I didn't expect to get the grant," said Edgar, who credited Assistant City Manager Al Campbell and Kennedy Engineers for doing the paperwork necessary to secure the grant.

The $245,000 grant will pay for 87.5 per cent of the cost of Kennedy Engineers' fees. The firm studied the best ways to phase out the city's existing sewage treatment plant, examining the two alternatives of consolidating with the Valley Community Services District plant or building a new city plant.

Some $183,750 of the grant is federal money. The remaining $30,625 is from the $250 million clean water bond issue approved by California voters in 1970.

Benchmark noting progress

Pleasanton test scores 'within predicted range'

PLEASANTON — Analyzing of state test results show that Pleasanton second, third and sixth graders of 1974-75 scored well within the predicted range in the areas of reading, written expression, spelling and math.

According to Gloria Jones, Amador-Pleasanton schools director of pupil personnel services, the results may best be thought of as a baseline or benchmark for noting progress in future years. "The usefullness of the results of the program will increase sharply as information in future years points to areas of growth and decline."

Adds Mrs. Jones, "The state assessment program report reflects the scores of 1974-75. The test format for the state program is that of a matrix sampling procedure. Every student does not take the same test form, but only a portion of a very long test. The chief limitation of such a testing report is that it presents and analyzes average student achievement in a limited number of knowledge content areas as measured by paper - and - pencil tests."

The following results indicate how schools in the Pleasanton district scored within a comparison band. For example, Alisal's comparison band for second grade reading is 52-79th percentile. Second graders of 1974-75 taking the reading tests achieved an 83 per cent correct score.

Thus, the 83 is their percentile rank in comparison with all other second graders taking the reading tests. The comparison band is arrived at by weighing socioeconomic status, education of parents and sex of student. The range differs for each Pleasanton school with the highest ranges being for Walnut Grove and Vintage Hills students who took the tests.

ALISAL

2nd Grade, reading — 83rd percentile; 3rd Grade, reading — 98th percentile. Comparison band range is 52nd to 79th percentile for second grade and 48-83 for third grade. Thus, Alisal second and third graders scored well above the range they were projected to score in.

FAIRLANDS

2nd Grade, reading — 74th percentile; 3rd Grade, reading — 64th percentile. Comparison bands were 47-73 (2nd Grade) and 41-72 (3rd Grade). Thus, Fairlands per cent of correct scores was slightly higher than the comparison band for second grade. The percentile rank for third-graders was in top third of range.

HARVEST PARK

6th Grade, reading — 77th percentile; written expression — 87th percentile; spelling — 72nd percentile; math — 72nd percentile. All percentile marks were in approximate middle of comparison band with exception of 6th grade written expression, which is two per cent above top of comparison band.

PLEASANTON

2nd Grade, reading — 81st percentile; 3rd Grade, reading — 85th percentile; 6th Grade, reading — 60th percentile; written expression — 73rd percentile; spelling — 60th percentile; math — 68th percentile. Grades 2 and 3 scored far above the comparison band (for those grades) of 44-71 (Grade 2) and 39-71 (Grade 3). Sixth grade written expression was in middle of comparison band (63-81) with reading and spelling two to three per cent below. The math percentile mark was within the range (63-84)

VALLEY VIEW

2nd Grade, reading — 75th percentile; 3rd Grade, reading — 90th centile. The comparison ranges were 64-8 and 59-93, respectively, indicating second graders were in middle of comparison band and third graders near the top.

VINTAGE HILLS

2nd Grade, reading — 96th percentile; 3rd Grade, reading — 77th percentile. Comparison bands were 69-9 and 64-97, respectively, meaning that second-graders were above the comparison range while third-graders were in lower middle.

WALNUT GROVE

2nd Grade, reading — 91st percentile; 3rd Grade, reading — 72nd percentile. Comparison band for second-grade was 74-94, meaning students tested scored near top of range. Third grade comparison band was 74-98, meaning students tested ranked slightly below lower limit.

Alleged heroin pushers arrested Wednesday night

LIVERMORE — Police here Wednesday night arrested a husband-wife team with more than $5,000 in heroin and narcotics paraphernalia in the couple's possession, a spokesman said yesterday.

Donald Dean Wetzel, 34, and his wife, Marilyn Gale Wetzel, 25, were arrested Wednesday about 6 p.m. at 1112 Madrone Way. Police Captain Jack Essex said 504 balloons or "dime bags" of heroin and a narcotics injection kit was found in the duo's possession.

According to police, the house's owner complained he had leased the single-family residence to a man who in turn either rented or allowed the couple to live in it without cost. The owner gave permission for police to search the house to determine if indeed someone else was living there.

Police uncovered the cut heroin and paraphernalia during the search.

Donald Wetzel was released on $8,250 bail. His wife Marilyn was released on bail of $7,000. The district attorney is investigating the case.

Three-man stolen car team broken up

LIVERMORE — Intensive investigation by police detectives led to three arrests in a stolen car conspiracy, a spokesman said yesterday.

A man arrested by Fremont police on investigation of burglary was found to be driving a car stolen from Don Plummer Chevrolet Nov. 12.

Under questioning by Police Detectives Dave Hollander and Mel Karline, 18-year-old Darrell Cook of Livermore allegedly confessed to stealing the car in a prearranged scheme with two other men.

Cook reportedly admitted taking the car for a test drive by himself. He drove to Greg Allen Johnson's 683 North I St. home where Johnson made an exact duplicate of the car key, police said.

Cook returned the car to the dealer, but allegedly came back later that night and stole the car, using the duplicate key. He then delivered the car to Sylvaine Richard Mondot, 44, of 1242 Glenwood, who paid him an undetermined cash price for the hot car, police said.

The car was later recovered by police in front of 2780 Carmen Way, the home of Mondot's parents.

Cook and Johnson were charged with grand theft by the district attorney's office. Mondot was charged with possession of stolen property.

Thieves strike vacant home up for sale

LIVERMORE — Thieves entered a vacant home up for sale in the past week and took more than $1,375 in cash, stereo equipment, clothes and records.

Allen Bruce Tyner of Adams St. told police he was in the process of moving when burglars hit sometime before Wednesday. A real estate agent showing the home to prospective clients noticed the house had been ransacked and called police.

A complete component stereo system, $260 in cash in tens and twenties, a hair dryer and men's clothes were among the items missing. A television set was also knocked over but not taken, police said.

Clothes stolen from launderette dryer

LIVERMORE — Clothes valued at $222 were stolen from a dryer at the Livermore Launderette in the Granada Shopping Center Wednesday evening.

Suzanne Hewitt told police she put the clothes in a dryer and went home. Upon returning one-half hour later, she discovered the clothes were missing.

Police have no suspects at this time.

Dublin man arrested with pot and booze in car

LIVERMORE — A Dublin man was arrested by Livermore police late Wednesday on investigation of charges of drunk driving, possession of marijuana and narcotics paraphernalia.

Danny Fearon, 19, of Glen Oaks Drive was pulled over by Officer John Balbach after Fearon's car reportedly ran a red light at First and North Livermore Ave. nearly causing an acident.

Balbach found an unopened bottle of rum, a baggie of suspected marijuana and associated narcotics paraphernalia in Fearon's car.

Fearon remains in custody on $1,250 bail.

Truck traffic may be eased

PLEASANTON — Construction truck traffic annoying Stoneridge residents will be alleviated in a few months, thanks to a left turn lane which will be installed at Stoneridge Drive.

Construction trucks have been traveling south on Foothill Drive to Muirwood Drive because left turns have been banned on Stoneridge Drive owing to unsafe left turn conditions on the two-lane road. This means the trucks have to travel back north on Pleasant Hill Road and Springdale Avenue to get to their destination. Irate neighbors complained with a petition to the city.

The city referred the problem to the county which agreed to have a left turn lane constructed at Stoneridge Drive for southbound traffic. The county opened bids from 12 construction companies yesterday and found a $17,058 bid from Gray and Lewis of San Carlos was the lowest, nearly $1,000 below engineers' estimates. The bid will go to the county board of supervisors Tuesday for formal approval. Completion of the project is expected before March 1, 1976.

Family wins $300,000 settlement

LIVERMORE — Betty Lou Malsam, 32, and her two children will receive $300,000 settlement because her husband, Albert, drowned two years ago when his safety vest tore off.

Texas Watercrafters Corp. of Wichita Falls was ordered to pay. Their product had been taken off the market after the accident and Mrs Malsam's Oakland attorney, Edward M. Digardi, showed that safety tests for the vest had been performed when the straps were wet. Malsam's vest was dry when he was spilled into the water while waterskiing in the San Joaquin River. He was a non-swimmer.

A PG&E linesman, Malsam lived at 844 Wall St. He died July 15, 1973. Damages were awarded yesterday in an Alameda County superior court jury decision.

Kinney to leave office

It's official—Ed won't run

PLEASANTON — Mayor Ed Kinney made it official today. He will not run for a second term on the Pleasanton city council.

Confirming what The Times said in its Wednesday editions, Kinney has acknowledged that new business responsibilities "as well as my desire to devote more time to family activities" have convinced him to bow out of the 1976 elections.

"I am satisfied that we have outstanding candidates for office who, together with council members Philcox and LeClaire, will give Pleasanton the strong council it will need" to face the challenge ahead, Kinney said in a prepared statement.

Robert Philcox and Joyce LeClaire will be the holdover members from the present council, while Councilman Rodger McLain and Vice Mayor William Herlihy have already announced their intention to seek new terms in that March balloting.

Ken Mercer is another announced candidate, and Mayor Kinney confirmed that he was "glad to see Ken file for the office" before making his own decision not to seek a second term.

Active in civic boards for the past six years, Kinney pledged that "I will keep my hand in the affairs of the community" after his term on the council expires.

"I encourage all Pleasanton residents to become actively involved in the upcoming election," the mayor said. "There are still crucial decisions to be made. The outcome of this election will decide who will make those decisions."

Kinney was elected, along with Floyd Mori and Herlihy, in the volatile spring of 1972, when the controversial SAVE anti-growth measure was also on that ballot. The SAVE initiative won a close majority vote in Pleasanton, even though all three successful candidates in that council race had taken stands opposed to that initiative.

Evidence all in

Smoking verdict due soon

Amador Valley High School District trustees are on the verge of making a decision— or standing pat— on the question of smoking on district campuses.

Board members, with a mountain of "evidence" provided them by the campus smoking legislation committee, have three options open to them and will have to decide on one at Tuesday's meeting at Dublin High School.

They may elect to stand pat and continue the prohibition of smoking on high school campuses (which is the law now), designate one or two of the high schools to have a particular area for smoking or setup smoking areas at all three high schools.

At their last meeting, dialogue of the four trustees present (Dr. Geraldine Donaldson, Charles Beazley, Wayne Barnes and Jack Delaney) indicated a 2-2 split. The fifth trustee, Wallace Decker, was absent because of illness.

Comments of the four were recorded and sent to Decker so that he could be familiar with the input of fellow board members.

The smoking committee's survey of students at the four district high schools (Amador, Foothill, Dublin and Valley), faculty members and parents turned up a consensus in favor of setting up designated smoking areas.

However, when broken down the vote shows parents against designated smoking areas, faculty members for and students overwhelmingly for.

Donaldson and Beazley have indicated opposition to changing the standing prohibition while Delaney and Barnes favor it— but on a trhal period basis.

The legislation becomes effective Jan. 1, 1976, hence the necessity to arrive at consensus this month.

Santa not only will ride in the parade but be present at the Amador Valley High girls' gym after the parade to meet all his young friends.

With a big assist from the Pleasanton Rotary Club, candy canes will be passed out.

The parade will form in the Bank of America parking lot on Main Street and step off at 11 a.m., the march culminating at Amador Valley High Children will then have n opportunity to talk to Santa and see Mr. Magoo's Christmas Carol cartoon show.

Following are some of the groups and individuals marching in tomorrow morning's parade;

Harvest Park Crusader Band, Mr. Bumbleberry (courtesy of Spectrum), Twinkie-the-Kid, children from Gingerbread House, Vintage Hills 4-H Club, Jaycees fire truck, Pleasanton School Tartan Band, Del Valle 4-H Club, Santa Claus, and Uncle Sam (come to the parade and see if you know who Uncle Sam is portrayed by).

Non-smokers seek rights to cleaner breathing

(This is the last in a two-part series on smoking. Today's article looks at what's being done locally to protect the rights of the nonsmoker.)

The once sacred right of the smoker to smoke in the company of non-smokers is being challenged. People are beginning to realize that not only may smoking be offensive to non-smokers, it also has a direct effect on the health of the non-smoker.

Locally steps are being taken to recognize the right of the nonsmoker to breathe in a smoke-free atmosphere.

Smoking has long been prohibited in certain areas by laws set forth in local fire codes.

Livermore Fire Marshal Dave O'Connor said the Fire Department is empowered to "invoke a no-smoking regulation in any area where smoking would cause a hazard."

"A great deal of this is self-enforced," said O'Connor, noting it would be unwise to smoke in an area where flammable liquids or explosives are present. It's also illegal.

State law forbids smoking at service stations. All local stations must post "no smoking" signs.

The State Education Code currently prohibits smoking in schools, except by staff members in areas approved by the local fire department. A change in the code will leave smoking in schools up to local administrators, starting next January.

But what about smoking in places such as theatres, hospitals, restaurants public meeting places and stores? Here the decision whether to permit smoking is left to the discretion of the owner or public officials.

A bill introduced in the California Assembly by Assemblyman John Briggs which would require the "designation and posting of non-smoking areas in places of public assembly, publically-owned hospitals and clinics, theatres, and restaurants."

The bill, AB 471, would take effect April 1, 1976, but it contains no enforcement provisions.

Some local action has already been taken.

The Livermore school board, for example, agreed unofficially to prohibit smoking at their public meetings. "The signs went up in 1974, and there hasn't been anyone who has breached it," said board member Ken Engelund.

The Amador High School District board has also agreed not to smoke when meeting in a school building. When meeting at the district office, however smoking is permitted.

The Murray School District board prohibits smoking at thir meetings.

The Livermore City Council banned smoking at council meetings by both audience and council members.

"I'm a smoker, but I agree with the official action," said councilwoman Helen Tirsll. "The room is simply too poorly ventilated. The smoke hangs in the air during a long meeting."

The ashtrays, she noted, are still soldered to the backs of the old chairs in the audience.

The Pleasanton City Council considered imposing a no smoking regulation in the early 1970's but the motion was rejected on a 3 to 2 vote.

Valley Community Services District director Ann Jolley said VCSD has twice considered a prohibition on smoking during their meetings. "The motions were introduced by a non-smoking member, but we had three smokers on the 5-seat board, and the motions were defeated," said Jolley.

"I'd favor the ban, myself, but I think it should have the support of the smokers on the board as well," she said.

Local hospitals and clinics follow the recommendations of the American Lung Association.

At Valley Memorial Hospital an attempt is made to separate smoking and non-smoking patients. Visitors may smoke only in the cafeteria, the outpatient lobby, and the main lobby. No cigarette machines are located anywhere in the hospital.

The VMH board of directors, however, has never considered imposing a smoking ban at their monthly meetings.

At the Pleasanton Health Care Center, smoking is not permitted in the waiting room or in the clinics.

The Livermore Public Library provides a smoking section near the periodicals and in the lobby. Smoking is prohibited in other areas.

Dublin librarian Virginia Bennett said, "There's been no smoking in the library for as long as I've been a librarian—25 years." She cited Fire Department regulations prohibiting it.

Smoking in retail stores, restaurants, and theatres is permitted at the discretion of the owner, except where prohibited by the Fire Codes. Van's Health Food Store in Livermore forbids smoking because its owners can't tolerate the smoke. Home Yardage in Dublin posts a no smoking sign because of possible damage to its merchandise.

What can be done to make other public officials, merchants, and restaurateurs follow suit?

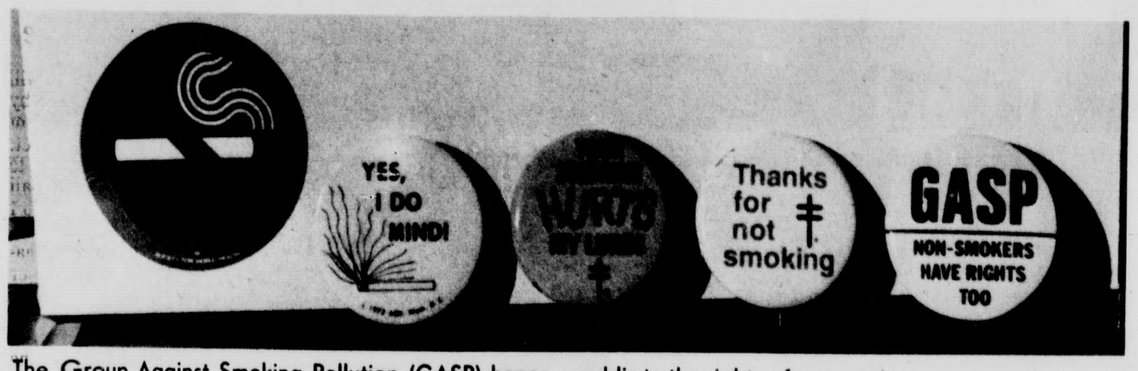
GASP (Group Against Smoking Polltution) is a grass-roots organization dedicated to stopping smoking in public meetings places, stores, restaurants, places of work, and other areas.

GASP worker at Berkeley headquarters Sandy Young said, "We're an activist group working to get anti-smoking legislation passed. We write letters, talk to local business owners, and take any action that will help get non-smoking areas set aside."

The closest GASP group is in Walnut Creek. But, said Sandy Young, "We'd be happy to come out to the valley to talk with anyone who wants to start a local GASP group." Those interestdd should call Berkeley headquarters at 849-1794, or GASP president Paul Loveday at 526-2545.

As GASP member Jim Cauble points out, "We're not against smoking per se." But non-smokers do comprise two-thirds of the adult American population, and it's time for the silent majority to speak out.

— by Karen Boyle



The Group Against Smoking Pollution (GASP) hopes distribution of its pamphlets and buttons will alert the public to the rights of non-smokers.

Domestic auto sales show hike

DETROIT (AP) — Domestic car sales last month shot up 35 per cent above the recession levels of November 1974 to provide the most dramatic sign yet that the auto industry has pulled out of its two-year slump.

The year-to-year percentage gain, reported Wednesday, was the largest for any month in nearly four years and contrasted sharply to a year ago, when plummeting sales forced unprecedented plant closings and massive worker layoffs.

However, sales of foreign cars, which had taken a record share of the U.S. market earlier this year, were the poorest since last December and the second lowest in 6½ years. Sales fell 4 per cent from already poor levels of November 1974.

The imports' weak showing, combined with strong domestic sales, gave foreign makers their smallest share of the U.S. market in four years.

Importers blamed their sales decline on shortages of some models and increased competition in the small-car market from Detroit, which has gone all out this year to match foreign cars in fuel economy.

Auto analysts said the sharp November gains by the U.S. companies reflected an accelerated recovery which got under way in early fall. They said sales had been improving earlier this year, but not as rapidly.

The industry's worst slump in four decades — triggered by the energy crisis in the fall of 1973 and dampened further by the recession — hit bottom a year ago when sales fell to their lowest levels for a November in 15 years.

Each of the four auto companies posted big sales increases this November. American Motors was up 70 per cent, General Motors 35 per cent, Ford 34 per cent and Chrysler 28 per cent.

Despite the large gains — exaggerated by last year's dismal results — the industry's performance still lagged well behind other recent Novembers. Sales were off 12 per cent from November 1973 and 23 per cent from the record set in 1972.

Schools eye joint free lunch pact

DUBLIN— The mandate of SB 120 that California school districts offer free or reduced price lunches to needy students may bring about an agreement to provide same between the Murray and Pleasanton school districts.

Phillip Chubb, business manager for Murray, said 33 students were currently being given milk and 50 or more might qualify for free lunches.

He said that the Pleasanton district would like to serve the Murray School District through their established food services program.

Chubb told Murray trustees that five district schools were equipped with kitchen equipment and said that pre-packaged food could be offered in the other schools. Chubb said that lunch programs cost money, but should cost less if combined with another district.

Chubb added that Pleasanton had not given him definitive answers on cost, but their elementary lunches were currently 50 cents and 60 cents for high school students. He pointed out that a 40 per cent participation rate was usually necessary to break even with a school lunch program.

Trustees have asked Chubb to proceed with discussions with Pleasanton towards the possibility of a combined program.

SB 120, authored by Sen George Moscone of San Francisco, will enact the Child Nutrition Facilities Act of 1975. The bill requires, commencing July 1, 1977, all school districts maintaining any kindergarten or any grades 1-12 to provide one free or reduced price breakfast or lunch to each enrolled "needy pupil."

School districts and county superintendents of schools will be required to submit specific implementation plans to Superintendent of Public Instruction Wilson Riles by July 1, 1976 The State Board of Education will be required to adopt standards and guidelines and to define "needy pupil" within specified federal limitations, and also to define "nutritious breakfast or lunch.

Additionally, Moscone's bill would require the computation of the school district contribution by applying at $0.05 tax rate to the assessed valuation of the district and dividing the result by the number of meals served by the district to needy pupils in the current fiscal year. This bill would prohibit combined state and federal reimbursements from exceeding current fiscal year average statewide lunch or breakfast costs and would provide, in such event, for expenditure of federal funds prior to the expenditure of any state funds.

Chain reaction

Herbert Edwin Copp Jr. of 35 Fenton Way in Livermore sits injured at the wheel of his late-model Cadillac after a chain reaction auto accident at Second and M Sts. Wednesday. Police said Copp backed up 37 feet from a parking space and hit a car, and then continued backing up another 70 feet. He then stopped and suddenly accelerated forward burning rubber and struck a second car which was parked. He then continued across Second St. and hit a third parked car, which in turn bumped into a fourth car. Copp was arrested on suspicion of drunk driving. (Times photo)

Pearl Harbor service

A Pearl Harbor Commemorative Service will be hosted tonight at 8 p.m. at the Veteran's Memorial Hall in Pleasanton by the Charles Auer V.F.W. Post and Auxiliary.

All service organizations, as well as the general public, are invited to participate in the service conducted by Commander Al Seguin and Chaplain John Rutter. All active armed-services personnel, living or visiting the valley, are also welcome.

An empty chair draped with a banner reading "POW-MIA" will represent those who have not yet been accounted for in the Vietnam conflict.

Refreshments will be served, and non-perishable food items will be collected to stock the Children's Emergency Council baskets.

Foothill High band plays in national TV

The Foothill High School Falcon band will appear on national television Monday, Dec. 8 when they perform at halftime of the Denver Broncos at Oakland Raiders National Football League contest.

As all Monday night games, it will start at 6 p.m. with the team of Howard Cosell, Frank Gifford and Alex Karras describing action and color.

If the game is a sellout by Friday night, it will be televised locally.

Foothill band director Bob Moorefield promises some surprises for the halftime show at the Oakland Coliseum.

Pleasanton bandsmen, in fact, will dominate the Coliseum turf the next two weeks as the Amador Valley High School band, under the direction of Jim Campana, will be the principal halftime attraction on Dec 14.

That game could also be televised, just locally, if a sellout is reached.

Freedom Train arrives!

Spectators admire exhibits included in the 25-car American Freedom Train.

Red, white and blue steamer comes to Bay Area

The American Freedom Train is here! The red, white and blue steam engine built by Southern Pacific in 1941 was borrowed from the city of Portland, for the train's western tour.

The goal of the 25-car train is to touch as many lives as possible with the dramatic portrayal of American achievement in the past 200 years.

The train is transformed into a total audio-visual montage portraying American achievement in the worlds of arts, technology, culture, crisis, and innovations. It will be open approximately 510 display days in more than 100 communities in 48 states over a period of 21 months.

The locomotive will be located at the Oakland Army Base (east end of Bay Bridge) today through Monday, Dec. 8 from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. daily. School groups are encouraged to plan to go between 8 a.m. and 2 p.m. on Dec. 5 and 8. Cost to all students is $1 during these hours if with a school group.

Tickets at $l for ages three to 12 years and senior citizens and general admission $2 may be obtained by dialing TELETIX (toll free).

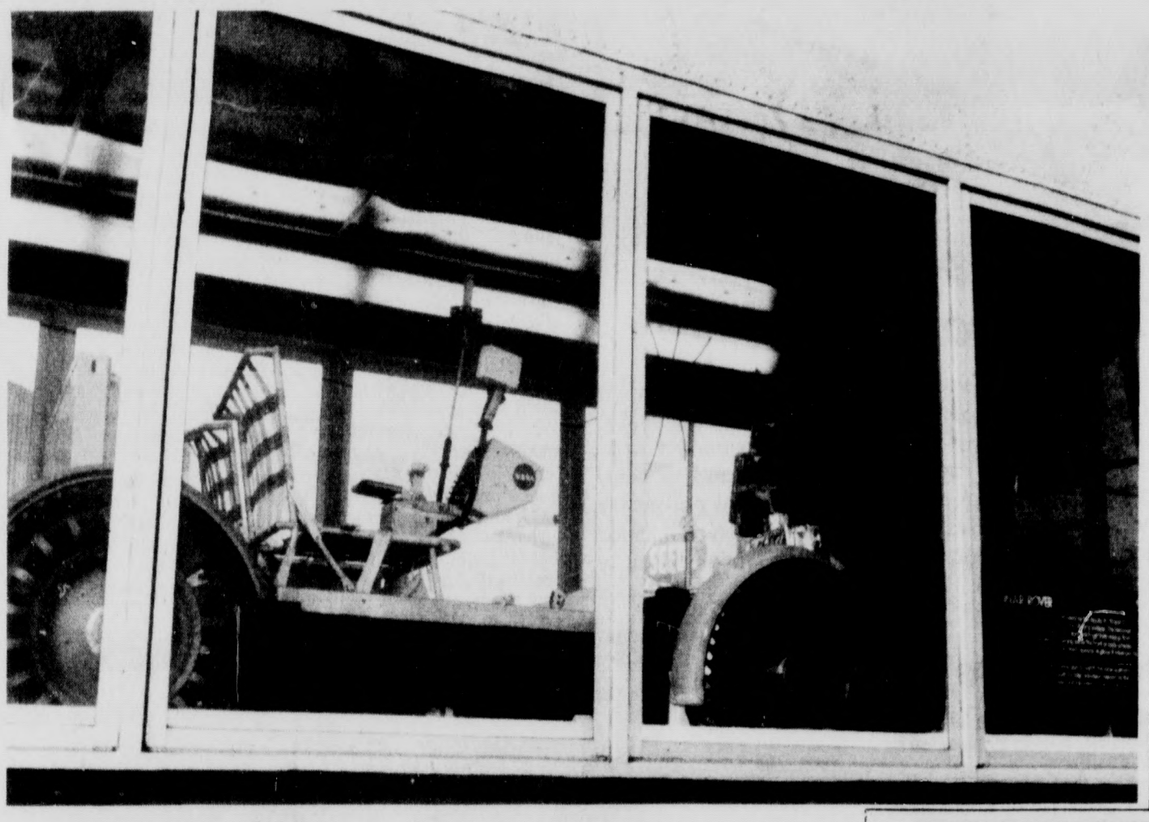
The Freedom Train is operated by the non-profit, tax-exempt American Freedom Train Foundation, Inc. chartered by the State of Massachusetts and operated without Federal funding by a skilled team of private citizens determined to make the project of, by and for the American people.

The period 1846-1856 is recaptured in one window of the train.

Rememberances of an old-time circus and Kitty Hawk are included.

1926-1936

The first Mickey Mouse cartoon and an old car highlight this exhibit.



The Lunar Rover used to scour the moon's surface by the crews of Apollo flights 15, 16 and 17 is one of the major attractions.

SR man files $16 million suit

Lesher News Bureau

MARTINEZ — A San Ramon man has filed a $16 million breach of contract suit against a Mountain View electronics firm.

Lawyers for Donald Hebert contend Hydra Associates of Mountain View and affiliated companies violated an agreement making Hebert a limited partner in the firm.

The suit said the company and its executives agreed to make Hebert a limited partner in 1973 under the condition that he invest $6,250 in the firm and his expertise in designing and building electronic printers.

In return, the suit adds, Hebert was to have received a 7.5 per cent interest in the company, plus a $24,000 annual salary.

But the suit alleges that in February 1974, company officials told Hebert that he was not a partner and that they would "diminish" his 7.5 per cent interest in the company.

Where mangoes grow in the backyard

Fractured French or not, she likes Tahiti

Peg Killingback went to the supermarket in Tahiti one day and asked, in her factured French, for two dozen cans of beer.

The case was duly loaded into the trunk of her car. When she opened it at home, she discovered only 15 beers, and in bottles besides.

"Of course," nodded husband Tony when he got home later that afternoon.

"You didn't know the French for "Cans," so you said it in English. Well, the French for 15 is "quinze" — pronounced almost the same!"

"O.K.," said Peg, "what's the word for cans?"

"Boite — the same word the French use for box."

"With my luck, I'll ask for two dozen "boites" of beer and they'll pour it into a box!"

Just one of life's little problems on the idyllic Papeete, a tropical Tahitian isle where the dark-eyed Pleasanton native (Nee Peg Silveria of Tassajara road, daughter of cattleman George Silveria and his wife, Ann) is living with her British husband, Tony, and their three-Year-old daughter, Tryna.

But Peg doesn't find the language confusion too hard to take. Not when the year-round temperature hovers in the 80's... she can go out into the backyard and pluck bananas, mangoes, papaya and cocoanuts for a snack...and a few feet beyond lies the lagoon, sparkling in indescribable shades of azure.

What gives Tahiti its special appeal to Peg is the combination of Polynesian and French culture.

Tahiti is a French territory. Therefore, the government officials are from France, as are the 35,000 soldiers on the 2,000-miles-long island chain. Also French are business executives and support personnel for the nuclear testing that is going on there.

Currency is the Tahitian franc, pegged to the French franc's rate of exchange. French wines and cheeses added to New Zealand and Australian meats (all extremely expensive because the French collect huge import taxes instead of income tax) complement the native fruits. vegetables, dairy products and seafood.

Food prices are so high that many people have supermarket charge accounts because they don't want to carry around that much cash.

Besides the French officials and military, the upper crust of Tahitian society is made up of other foreign businessmen like Tony Killingback, an executive working at Banque de Tahiti, a branch of Bank of Hawaii.

The Killingbacks will be sending little Tryna to a large and very high caliber preschool in Papeete. The school is supported by the French government for the free use of French and other foreign visitors.

The "locals" live a less luxurious life, working at the menial jobs but paying the same high prices for everyday items as anyone else, thanks to the taxing system which Tony sees as "inequitable."

Tahitians first objected to the nuclear testing. "But now thev can see the benefits it's brought them — a new airport that handles 747 jets, a much larger port, a business boom.

"Of course, it's like giving a lollipop to a child and then taking it away again ..the French are going to begin underground testing in the Sahara and all this support will be withdrawn from Tahiti."

The Killingbacks met in American Samoa, where Peg, a teacher with an administrative credential, was making educational TV shows and Tony was working at another bank.

Next stop was Guam, a humid and crime-ridden place they both hated.

Their reward for 20 months there was Tony's transfer to Tahiti, where the company provides them with a four-bedroom house with massive living room (perfect for their frequent parties), cathedral ceiling, tiki pillars, parquet floors and wood paneling.

Peg is prohibited from working by French immigration laws. Her daily routine consists of plunges in the lagoon with Tryna and Pickwick, the Irish setter ; directing the gardener, housekeeper and babysitter; preparing for the elaborate dinner parties she gives; and fending off the advances of ardent Frenchmen.

How does your average Valley resident get out of the rut and into cosmopolitan society on a tropical isle?

Visiting Peg's Tassajara Road family this week, Peg and Tony had some ready answers.

One: Really desire to travel, even if it means giving up steak and showers. "I never intended to stay home all my life," both chorused.

Two: Be prepared to work in a lot of not-so-desirable places (Tony worked in Vietnam four years, both stuck it out in Guam.)

The fortyish couple point out: "We've paid our dues. You can't expect to do it when you're 20."

Three: Develop a needed skill Teachers can usually get jobs at American military bases or big American corporate headquarters anywhere in the world Business executives, "middle management and up," working for international companies may get a transfer to some exotic place. Banking, trade, shipping firms, airlines, hotel chains, travel bureaus, tour companies and diplomatic corps are some of the careers to consider;

In general, the best way to live abroad is to get an American company (or the government; write Department of the Interior for information) to send you. With the world recession, it's difficult or impossible to get a work visa from a foreign country on your own.

Fourth: Don't throw away career gains you have made in order to get to that idyllic isle. "You may find it's not what you really want after all," warns Tony, "and then where will you be?"

There really ARE things not to like in Tahiti — tropical insects and parasites, a Gaughin museum with one lone original painting in it, no nightlife or symphony or ballet.

The Killingbacks get back in touch with the outside world twice a year.

In fact, they've already left Pleasanton for England, to pay a call on Tony's mother who lives on the south coast.

When they said goodbye to Peg's sister, Beverly Haight — who went to the other extreme, married the boy down the street and got a job with the Pleasanton school district — Bev had just one question: "When can I come and visit?"

Loma Alta group seeks playground

PLEASANTON— The Loma Alta Playground Action Committee's drive for a play area in the vicinity of Fairlands School has taken a major step toward fulfillment.

In hopes of bolstering the fund for accomplishing the project, committee members held a flea market several weeks ago at Fairlands. after adding up food, booth and rental receipts and subtracting expenses, LAPAC came up with a net profit of $423.65.

Among those contributing to the success of the flea market were Janet Loebs, Larry Oliverius, Harry Johnson, Dave Gehringer, Carol and Dave Vorpahl, Marilyn Proll, Paul Kalamen, Larry Oliverius, Harry Johnson, Gene Vargas, principal at Fairlands School, Judie Hultman at Bibere Coffee House, Cudahay Meats, Coca Cola Company, The Cheese Factory, Jack-in-the-Box and Safeway.

THIS WILL BE the last weekend for pheasants and doves for the season. So if you want to get more of these birds, it's your last chance!

THE MAGAZINE, "California Wildlife", is a good bargain at $5 per year. You'll get information on state water projects, fish and wildlife, legislation concerning wildlife and hunting regulations, and countless other up - to - date articles. If you'd like to have this magazine, write to the California Wildlife Federation, P.O. Box 9504, Sacramento, CA 95823.

PHIL DIAZ says he had a funny, dizzy sort of feeling in the pit of his stomach when out fishing the other day. It was caused by the sudden breaking of his fishing pole at just the moment he had a big striper right up next to the boat! The pole snapped next to the ferrule (Phil says perhaps the drag was set too hard.)

The fish got tangled up in the motor prop. Phil's Uncle George rushed to the rescue and helped get the striper aboard. It weighed a good strong 14 pounds. Quite a bit of excitement for a few minutes, says Phil.

DICK GREENE and son, Rick, report that the Merced Refuge is the place to get ducks. Good comfortable blinds, easy walking, no decoys to haul around through the mud and tules. The Refuge also limits the amount of shells one can take, which helps to lighten the load, says Dick.

THE U.S. FISH and Wildlife Service will sell steel shot on a voluntary basis at several California National Wildlife Refuges this season. The Klamath Basin Refuges, Sacramento Valley Refuges, San Luis Refuges, and Kern NWR will all sell steel shot at Service cost of $5 a box.

This will give hunters an opportunity to try steel shot under field conditions so they can make up their own minds as to its effectiveness.

The controversy over steel shot has confused many of the Nation's water-fowlers. Numerous articles on the subject, pro and con, have appeared the past few years.

The Fish and Wildlife Service maintains that total losses of migratory waterfowl to lead poisoning caused by ingested lead shot is significant and runs into the millions. Steel is at present the only practical non-toxic substitute for lead. At ranges up to 45 yards it performs about as well as lead shot and in modern American-made single-barrel guns should not cause barrel damage.

The following report shows where the ducks were found, along with a gew geese: Joice Island drew 68 hunters and provided an average of 4.8 birds per hunter. Next best hunting area was Kesterson NWR with 258 hunters and an average of 2.1 birds. Next best producer was Mendota with 1,246 hunters and an average of 2.0 ducks, and with 4 geese taken. Following these were Grizzly Island, average 1.9; San Luis, Volta Delevan NWR, Sacramento NWR; Colusa; and Los Banos, which was down to an average of 1.0 birds per hunter. These averages were for the week of Nov. 19 to 23 but were pretty much representative for the season so far.

The California Fish and Game Commission will name winners in its 1975 Photography Award Program at the commission meeting Friday in Sacramento.

Awards will be made in Five categories: fish, birds, mammals, reptiles and amphibians, and the natural environment. A plaque will be presented for the picture of the year, and the picture will be displayed in the State Capitol.

Commission President Timothy M. Doheny said that 74 entries were received in this the first year of the program. Entries were judged by trustees and members of FRIENDS OF PHOTOGRAPHY, a nonprofit organization devoted to promoting photography as a fine art. The group is headed by the renowned photographer Ansel Adams, who was one of the judges.

Information on the photo award program may be obtained from the commission office at 1416 Ninth St., Sacramento 95814 or from regional offices of the Department of Fish and Game.

Pokes' Howard All-East Bay pick

Livermore High School defensive lineman Pete Howard has been selected unanimously for the All East Bay Football Team announced this morning by the East Bay Prep Writers Association.

The 6-1, 195 defensive end is the only EBAL player named to the first offensive or defensive units by an eight-person panel of sports writers.

Howard, a senior, was named Livermore High's Most Valuable Player last month.

Granada High, champion of the EBAL and runnerup team in the North Coast Section Four-A championships, picked up three second-team berths on the all-star squad.

Stellar tackle Ron Freeman was named to the second units on offense and defense Junior linebacker Larry Burke was picked for the second defense.

Honorable mention went to four more EBAL players, running back Steve Jaeger and wide receiver Brian McSharry of Granada, fullback Jim Boulware and tackle Jeff Hellinga of Dublin.

Howard was one of a handful of players to receive unanimous approval for the All-East Bay squad. He joins 6-1, 230 Issiah Williams of Berkeley, Jeff Taylor, 6-3, 230 from Pinole Valley, and Alhambra's 6-0, 189 John Schulte on the defensive line.

Livermore's rushing defense was one of the toughest in Bay Area football this past season, thanks in part to Howard's outstanding play. He led the team in sacks of the quarterback, splitting time between defensive end and a down-lineman position Howard also shared the place-kicking duties for Livermore.

He and Freeman were both named two weeks ago to the All-EBAL football team, along with Burke, Jaeger and Hellinga.

Heading up the All-East Bay backfield is 5-11, 165 quarterback John Lucido of Alhambra High School, the North Coast's Two-A champion.

The running backs are astronomical players, Sean Sullivan of Mission San Jose, Marina's Bob Cardenas, and Robbie Kahuanui of Alameda.

Sullivan rushed for 1,153 yards and scored 12 touchdowns this past season. Cardenas established Hayward Area Athletic League records by gaining 1,530 yards on the ground and scoring an astounding 27 touchdowns.

Kahuanui may have been the best of all, but the senior played only six games before sucumbing to an ankle injury. Kahuanui gained 1,472 yards and scored 21 touchdowns in the seven games. He averaged 210 yards per game, and 8.9 yards per carry.

Wide receiver berths on the all-star team went to Ron Coccimiglio of Clayton Valley, and Salesian's Taggie Sharpe. It was Sharpe who led the East Bay in receiving with 53 catches for 899 yards and 10 touchdowns, with a 17.1 yards average per catch.

Two Mission San Jose players anchor the offensive line, center Brian Morrow, 6-1, 190, and guard Dave Perucca, 6-1, 210.

Raiders face Denver

OAKLAND — The Oakland Raiders will be striving for a seventh straight victory when they meet the high-scoring Denver Broncos Monday at 6 p.m. in the Oakland Coliseum before a national television audience.

The Raiders, coached by John Madden, won their eighth American Football Conference Western Division Championship in the last nine years by defeating the stubborn Atlanta Falcons 37-34 in overtime last Sunday in Oakland.

The triumph pushed the Raiders' record to 9-2, with six straight wins, and leaves the Silver and Black with a four-game lead over Kansas City (5-6) and Denver (5-6) with three games remaining.

The Western Division Championship race was decided after only 11 weeks, making it the second earliest title ever for the Raiders. Last year Oakland won the crown in 10 weeks by reeling off nine consecutive victories after an opening loss at Buffalo. The Raiders finished 12-2 in 1974, bowing to Denver in the 11th game, and then closing with victories over New England, Kansas City and Dallas.

Monday's game with Denver will be televised by ABC with Frank Gifford, Alex Karras and Howard Cosell the announcers. It will also be broadcast over the Raiders Radio Network, with Bill King and Scotty Stirling, starting at 5:40 p.m. (PST).

The Raiders have played in the Monday night game seven times, with a 5-1-1 record and the enviable distinction of never having scored less than 20 points. The Raiders opened the season and the Monday night series this year with a 31-2 triumph over the Dolphins in Miami. The Raiders have scored 200 points in seven Monday night games, or 28.7 points per appearance.

This will be the 32nd regular season meeting of the Raiders and Broncos, with Oakland holding a 23-6-2 edge in the hard-fought series. The Raiders defeated the Broncos in Denver by a 42-17 score on Nov. 2.

The Raiders became the third team in the National Football League to qualify for the Dec. 27-28 playoffs by rolling up 534 yards on 97 offensive plays against the tough Falcons. The winning points came on a 36-yard field goal by George Blanda with no time remaining in the 15-minute overtime. A week earlier, Blanda had ended an overtime game at Washington with a 27-yard field goal at 7:13 into the extra period.

Ken Stabler passed for four touchdowns and Cliff Branch caught three in the win over the Falcons.

Mat wrestlers host tourney

Granada High School, which had one of the top wrestling teams in the East Bay Area last season, opens its 1975-76 season tomorrow when it hosts the second annual Granada Invitational Wrestling Tournament at the Alameda County Fairgrounds.

The tournament begins at 10 am with the trials and the finals will began some time after 3 pm. Weigh-ins will be from 7 to 8:30 am.

There will be eight teams entered in the tournament. Besides Granada, Livermore of the East Bay Athletic League is also entered. Other teams include American of Fremont, Kennedy of Fremont, Newark, Sunset of Hayward, Mt. Eden and Liberty.

Matador coach Steve Page feels his team and American should be the favorites for the tourney championship.

"The tournament will be a dual-meet set-up," he said. "Each team will compete in dual meets throughout the tourney."

The Matadors went through a 14-0 EBAL season last year enroute to the league crown. However, half the team graduated last June. Still, Page thinks the Matadors will do all right this season.

"We have two top wrestlers back from last year's team," he said. "Steve Jaeger (165 pounds) and Ron Freeman (191 pounds) should do very well this year."

"We've gotten a late start because the football team finished so late," Page admits. "However, we have a number of returning wrestlers back and we should be okay. I look for San Ramon to be our toughest competition this year." —Gary Brown

Bowling tourney

The fifth weekend of the Livermore Valley Bowling Tournament begins Friday at 2 p.m. with the Ladies Bonus Squad in the Team Event.

Team competition returns Saturday at 3 p.m., while doubles and singles will start Sunday at 10:30 a.m.

I left my Hart in uh, uh ???

Mike Zampa

Dick Hart spends so much time overseas you'd think he were a Vice President or something, being shunted out of the country before he could muddle things up around the White House.

Hart probably rivals Henry Kissinger in air miles logged, and unfamiliar beds slept in, and like Dr. K, he dabbles in a brand of shuttle diplomacy.

Well in an official capacity, anyway.

Hart came to the coaches, banquet Wednesday night to kick off the 1975 Amador Basketball Classic two weeks hence in Pleasanton. For the second straight year Dick is bringing his Redwood High School club over from Larkspur.

Dressed in a casual sports shirt and cardigan sweater, he told members of the fraternity that he might just stay here for a couple of weeks.

"You have to excuse the attire," said Hart, normally a man of sartorial elegance. "But you see I got home late from another of these dinners the other night and my wife gave me the rubber key to the house. I've been wearing this outfit for three days. Don't worry though," Dick assured his audience. "Things should be back to normal by Christmas."

If the jocular Hart is failing in domestic diplomacy, however, he's still a success on the international level Dick completed his fifth overseas trip last year to instruct basketball in foreign lands. He's conducted more clinics than the Mayos, given overseas G.I.'s the biggest slice of Americanna since Bob Hope.

The Redwood coach works with the United States Navy to conduct basketball clinics for servicemen in our foreign bases. Last summer he visited the Phillipines. Before that it was Japan, and before that, Korea.

In Seoul they think Pork Chop Hill is Hart's rotund mid-section. Sixty Seconds over Tokyo refers to the hang time of a Japanese based rebounder Dick tutored. When he tells the Pacific Fleet; "I will return;" their concept of national defense narrows down to the zone, or man-to-man.

Dick Hart may be the most respected coach in Bay Area basketball. In 16 years of plying his trade, the graduate of Drake University has won approximately two of every three games his teams have played. Hart has taken the Giants to the Tournament of Champions six times, including four trips in the last seven years. Since the inception of the Marin County Athletic League, Redwood has won 155 basketball games and lost 48 in the conference. Last year the Giants were 22-9, and 14-3 in league.

One of his products, Scott Trobbe, just concluded a successful basketball career at Stanford last spring. Another, Jack Hagler, is starting as a freshman for Cal's junior varsity.

Two of his players are currently employed in European professional ranks, one as player-coach.

At Tracy High School he was the physical education teacher for KTVU sports director Gary Park. All right, well at least his other pupils found honest work.

In any event, it has been Hart's shrewdness that has built up Redwoood basketball. It is a cornerstone of Marin life. Dick has made it such with his basketball skill and his personal charm. Hart is one of those guys with a bountiful pocketbook when the gang gathers at the tavern. He remembers names after one introduction and shouts them out without fear he's actually forgotten one. Friends of Redwood basketball are his friends. He brought two booster members to the Amador banquet Wednesday with names that sounded something like Rigatoni and Mosticolli. "My wheel man and my hit man," Hart smiled. They smiled too and that is important for the Redwood program.

Giant boosters are proud of Hart, and with reason Dick attended a national coaches' convention in Orlando Fla. last summer, and was nearly named the outstanding high school coach in the country. He wears a ring signifying his supremacy for the Western United States.

"I had a record of 300 and something wins and 100 and something losses and I figured great, I'd have a chance to be the top guy at the convention," Hart says. "You ought to see the ring you get for being number one. Anyway, we each had to get up and give a half-hour talk. Well this coach from North Terra Haute High School gets up there and his record is something like 680 and 150. And he tells us that in Indiana, basketball isn't a sport, it's a religion. He said he told his principal what to do. Well that was it for me right there."

Not that Hart, ensconced for years in one of the Bay Area's wealthier communities, needs any more conspicuous ego boosters. He wears the mien, and usually the finely-tailored suits, of a successful man.

The pretentions are all gone.

"On that last tour to the Phillipines, they gave me a G15 rating," Hart explains "That's equivalent to an Army Colonel and they gave me the treatment. At the airport they'd page me as "distinguished guest Hart and stuff like that. It was pretty embarrasing because here 10 minutes before I'd been picking up towles in some gym, and now they're rolling out the red carpet."

They'll roll out the carpet for Hart again Dec. 18 when his Redwood team comes to Pleasanton to face Amador High. Hart and Don coach Skip Mohatt are long time friends.

Dick defeated Skip in two games last season, but at Wednesday's banquet Mohatt said there will be no revenge motive in their tournament matchup. "There's no one in this room I couldn't lose to with grace," said Mohatt smiling.

With Hart that's easy to admit. Sooner or later, everyone will.

Don cagers renew old rivalry

Divorce wiped out Liberty High School's love affair with the EBAL two years ago. The Lions removed their slippers from under the bed, claimed irreconcilable differences with the league, and moved to the Foothill Athletic League, where they sought parity in enrollment, and maybe in competition.

One relationship remains in tact, however, in the aftermath of that great tearing assunder, the friendship of Liberty's basketball coach, Jerry Miller, with his counterpart at Amador Valley High, Skip Mohatt.

The two broke into the EBAL together about nine years ago. Ever since, they have talked together, laughed together an and enjoyed beating each other's brains out on the basketball floor.

Mohatt still owes Miller a brew for the time two years back when Liberty reared up and stunned Granada High in the late stages of the EBAL championship race. The Matadors had been snipping at the heels of Amador all season long until that big upset. Then they did a nose-dived. Don't try to tell Mohatt his team backed into the championship behind Jerry Miller's coat tails. He'll get the Booster Club to poison your lawn. But he is appreciative of the assist the Dons received in gaining the first of two consecutive berths in the Tournament of Champions.

Tonight maybe Skip will tender his thanks, just before Amador takes the floor for the season basketball opener, and tries to crunch Liberty once again.

The Dons and Lions tip off at 8 p.m. in Pleasanton. Good fellowship aside, it will look like a matchup of rival junk yard dogs. Both teams are renowned for quickness and nasty defense. Both have young players eager to make up for the loss of valuable veterans. If it isn't polished, at least it will be an honest effort.

Amador is rated eighth in the East Bay before it has even taken the court. "We're maybe a legitimate 16th," Mohatt says. Liberty was given honorable mention in the polls, but according to Mohatt, it deserves a top rating for opening night toughness.

"They're always ready early in the season," he says. "Our game is complex, though, and we can stink up the place for awhile."

The Dons will suit up 12 players for their 1975 opener, but the roster is still fluid. Injuries and inexperience may dictate changes by the time league play rolls around.

Amador must patch up the ravages of graduation which cost starters Andy Finn. Jeff Hine and Rich Hall, among others.

It didn't help when varsity letterman Mark Clark transferred to St. Joseph's. He could have started for the Dons.

Returning are starters Mike Hill, a 6-2 forward who should be at guard, and 6-5 Rob Yackley, the center who should be a forward.

Mohatt's son Steve will open at a guard spot and he too has varsity experience. Tonight's other starters will be 6-3 forward Sam Jorgenson, and 6-0 guard Dave Van Norden.

One of the key's to Amador's league success, forward Jim Yackley, will sit out this evening's game with an ankle sprain. He was injured the first week of practice.

"Most of our experience is gone," Mohatt says, "and most of our tradition is gone."

Enough lingers on, however, to make Amador one of the East Bay's top 10 teams, at least before the season. Starting tonight, Amador will discover whether or not there's enough for an entire season.

Amador, Giants play in Classic

Amador Valley High School will earn the opportunity to avenge its opening loss in last year's Tournament of Champions wher the Amador Basketball Classic gets underway in two weeks.

The Dons will meet Redwood of Larkspur in a first-round game on Dec 18, the second night of the Classic.

Redwood downed Amador, 53-47, last March in the first game of the TOC Amador went on to earn its second straight consolation title at the Oakland Coliseum.

The Dons pulled within two points of the Giants in the final half-minute of that game, but committed fatal fouls in the last seconds to lose.

Dublin High School will play its opening Amador Classic game Dec. 17, meeting St Joseph's of Alameda at 8:30.

In the first game that evening, Mission San Jose will face ninth-ranked Fremont of Oakland.

On Wednesday, Arroyo High meets 11th-rated Bishop O'Dowd.

The Amador Classic has taken on a local flavor this season, drawing seven of its eight entrants from the East Bay. It once again has a top field, however, including three teams that went to the TOC last year, Amador, Redwood and O'Dowd. Arroyo and Fremont will be among the favorites for championships in the Hayward and Oakland athletic leagues.

St. Joseph's will be a force in the Catholic Athletic League, and in fact has already defeated Arroyo, 70-52, in a non-league contest.

Mat hoopsters optimistic

At Granada High they're sitting on a powder keg. The school's football team won a league championship last month, and nearly topped that by finishing second in the North Coast Section.

Now along comes basketball season, and the Matadors look like they should accomplish more than they did in the fall. For awhile folks thought the only thing holding Granada back would be the flooded out gym floor on campus. Well even that is fixed now, and ready for play by Dec. 23. But just in case, basketball coach Pat Fracisco has hired Bear Bryant to teach classes in walking on water.

Can't miss a trick with a load like they've got at Granada.

Seven varsity players return for the Matadors this season, and six of them started at one point last season.

Granada opens its schedule at the Alameda County Fairgrounds tonight at 8 facing Kennedy High of Fremont. Fracisco's smallest starters will be guards Tom Tanasovich and Mike Fracisco (the coach's son). Both are 6-3.

With that kind of talent and size the only question is which way to the NBA playoffs?

But not so fast. There have been good teams at Granada in the recent past, and they have discovered that championships aren't won in the publicity department.The latest powerhouse edition with Corey Knapp, Howie Marion and Mark Lehman moved through two years ago and never won a title. There were others before that.

Fracisco has lived with the nightmare of unrealized potential, and he's guarding against more of that this season. "We didn't get the job done that year with Knapp and Lehman and Marion," he recalls. "And I can still see it.

"You've got to do your homework and work the kids hard and hope they progress. I don't mind getting beat by a team that's better, but I don't want to lose because we weren't prepared.

"We've got people who think we're good," Fracisco admits; "and we don't want to disappoint them. We're going to get a lot of playing time for everybody because you're not sure what's going to happen. You might get players sick or hurt.

"We're going with a different attitude around here this year," the coach says "We've had a winning football team and we're trying to carry that over. Before we had to make our own ground. Now we don't."

Granada is the 10th ranked team in the East Bay as the season gets underway tonight. It is expected to surpass that heighth, and maybe unseat Amador Valley as EBAL champion by year's end.

All-league forward Scott Campbell returns for another year of machine gunning offense and suicidal defense, and he'll be joined up front by Granada's tower of power. Six-seven Lee Brennan will be the center, and 6-5 Joe Wujek will be the other forward. It's not the tallest team Granada's ever had, Fracisco says. But it will do until the Wilt Chamberlain quints reach puberty.

In case tonight's starters aren't sure how to go about winning, Fracisco has two football refugees to offer advice, John Walden and Vance Rushing. Both are guards, and both could be starters by the league campaign. Neither will play tonight because football season ended last Friday and they still tend to huddle up after every basket.

The junior varsity's most valuable player of a year ago, Ken Ebert, will get action with the big club, and so will other J V. graduates Jeff Evert, Ken Curtis and Steve Cox.

Though Granada is tall enough this year to rate designation as a national forest, Fracisco says it won't play stagnant basketball. The Matadors will run against Kennedy tonight, and whenever it becomes necessary after that.

"We've got to worry about stalls and delays," Fracisco says. "If other teams get smart and try that we want to get pressure on them right now, make them handle the ball. And we want to run to get the kids their wind."

Campbell, the long-range gunner, is long past the conditioning stage. He ran the annual two-mile time trials a full minute faster than any Granada player in history.

"He's just got such tremendous drive," says Fracisco "He may go 3-for-15 or 3-for-16 some night, but we won't worry. He'll make up for it in hustle. We're just working on controlling that temper of his."

There could be a problem convincing the Matadors, even non-stop Campbell, that the season won't be a stroll in the land of Lilliputians. They are a free thinking bunch and they realize the potential that exists. "There are a lot of chiefs out there," as the coach puts it.

Adventists start door-to-door drive

Saturday begins the door-to-door contact by the Livermore Seventh Day Adventist Church for its annual world wide humanitarian program, accepting funds and delivering literature concerning the needy at home and abroad.

Pastor Robert Becker remarks that "A 1975 version of the Old Testament's weeping prophet Jeremiah could probably fill as big a bottle with tears over our day."

He continues that "Back in the sixth century B.C., the Jewish people had pretty well turned their backs on the God who made them at one time one of the greatest people on earth. As a consequence of their turning, their people became scattered across the face of the earth, their promised land stripped from them, and their temple and center of worship totally wiped out. The prophet Jeremiah saw these happenings and spoke out in warnings which went unheeded."

The local Adventist church is studying this prophet this quarter and finds that today the Jewish people are trying to recover their lost heritage put they are doing it with human force; with arms and man-made plans instead of returning to their God and discovering that truly the Messiah did walk among them.

Pastor Becker expresses the belief that "today it's not just the Jews facing destruction predicted by Jeremiah, but the whole world is in trouble." He says, "One has only to turn on the TV, pick up the newspaper, or listen to radio to know that the kind of world we're living in cannot long continue, and once again God will wipe out a disobedient people — the peoples of the earth — and make a new earth where God is loved and all will live in peace and perfect harmony

Richard Gower's platform

Pro-labor candidate wants seven member council

LIVERMORE — City council candidate Richard Gower is a pro-labor man who would like to see a seven-member council with an elected mayor, a revised construction fee structure, a controlled growth rate of about 5 or 6 per cent, and a planning commission with more power and less "political appointments of ex-campaign managers."

Gower himself is an ex-campaign manager, having helped Dale Turner get elected to the council in 1974. He considers himself politically aligned with Turner.

"Councilman Turner and myself don't see eye to eye on every item but we certainlx agree on the premise of where we want this city to go and how to get it there," he said.

Gower also was in favor of the widening of I-580, wouldn't mind seeing New Town developed as long as it would not be dependent on Livermore for basic city services, and believes the 25-cent tax override on the March ballot for use by the police and fire departments is necessary.

Gower, 32, has lived in Livermore for the past five years with his wife, Cheryl, and their two children. He is a lieutenant with the Oakland Fire Department but he explained his unconventional hours would not prevent him from attending Monday night council meetings.

He now either attends or closely follows council meetings.

Gower is affiliated with the International Association of Firefighters, Local No. 55; is a member of the local executive council; represents his local to the Congress of Political Education (COPE); is a representative to the Central Labor Council of Alameda County, and chairman of the Board of Directors for the insurance and welfare association of the fire department.

"I would have insight into some of the problems faced by the city council in their labor negotiations with city employes," he pointed out.

"I've been on the other side of the fence, therefore I can recognize the needs and desires of the employes while at the same time I can understand the fiscal responsibilities and deficits many of the cities are facing today."

Gower favors a seven-member council with either all members elected at large or, preferably, dividing the city into four wards with a member elected from each, two elected at large and one elected as mayor.

He views the current construction fee structure as "high and burdensome," although he supports the idea of industry paying its own way.

What he would like to see is a staggering of the fee structure over, for example, a five-year period, thus enabling industry to locate in Livermore and have the money necessary to build a successful operation, which in turns expands the city's tax base.

"We could, for example, if a fee were $50,000, make the first year's fee $5,000; second year, $5,000; third and fourth years, $10,000, and the fifth year would be the difference ($20,000).

"This gives the commerce the opportunity to bring its income and use this money which normally would go to fees back into the business and give it a head start.

"If we put them in an area of financial problems with a fee schedule, how can we ever expect them to get off the ground," he asked.

A 1 to 2 per cent growth rate has been recommended by the council and commission for the next 20 years in the city's General Plan but Gower leans more to a 5 or 6 per cent growth rate.

"I'm not opposed to a form of controlled residential growth. I don't want to live in a city of 100,000 or 200,000 people," he said.

"But when we have an attractive community like ours — and we do have many people who want to live in this area — I don't feel its fair to deny people the right to the same enjoyment I have in living in this city."

Gower also looks favorably upon growth because it would provide some employment in the building trade — the same reason he could support New Town "although I don't know whether I'd be willing to allow the City of Livermore to provide essential city services, sewage treatment plant facilities and other necessary residential and commercial services to that city before it was completed to the point it could survive on its own," he added.

He also noted that New Town would increase the population in Livermore's end of the valley and would "make it more condusive to a regional shopping center which is so sorely needed by our local community."

Gower supports a 25-cent tax override for additional police and fire personnel as long as it would not exceed five years.

"Through my investigations and from reports from the police and fire chiefs, they're operating with bare minimums. Police and fire protection is and always will be a high cost item. If you want protection, the citizens are going to have to pay for it," he stated.

As to the composition and power of the planning commission, Gower said appointments should reflect a broad spectrum of interests — a lawyer, architect, someone from the building trades, and representatives from the community and environmental interests.

Furthermore, planning commission decisions should go to the council on an appeal basis only, otherwise commissioners are "wasting their time."

Gower also criticized the present council for the lose of the Las Positas Valley from its sphere of influence which in turn led to its lack of control over New Town.

"If the council had gotten off the dime and done its job when the problem first arose and at least indicated future development in that area, we would, first, not have lost our sphere of influence ... and therefore would not be confronted with the problem of the construction of a city (New Town) that size and magnitude next door to our city limits without any input into what effect it would have on our city and its residents."

He also said he supported the widening of I-580 and criticized the council for "see (ing) fit to sit at meeting after meeting and have input into the environmental impact on the construction of a freeway which would alleviate commute problems for commuters in Livermore, rather than tending to its own back yard."

He made a "guesstimate" that 70 per cent of the Livermore population commutes outside the valley.

Find a hole - and then what?

Two events this past week might give an optimist reason to believe there is hope for bringing the gravel industry into harmonious relationship with this valley's environment.

At the week's outset, there was that bold proclamation by "the big four" extractors pledging to undertake "meaningful" reclamation of the depleted pits. All 3000 acres of them. The very next day, the Alameda County Board of Supervisors responded to that promise by softening their own conditions for the latest quarry permit.

A pessimist might ask: "Was the promised reclamation plan released just to sway the board's decision on that one permit?" We sincerely hope not. We will even extend our trust to the reclamation plan itself, believing the industry has finally acknowledged — after some 40 years of extracting grey gold from the bowels of this valley — that it is to their advantage as well as to the community they share to devise an intelligent, workable plan to bring that abandoned land to some good purpose.

The industry can give us clear assurance of their intentions by backing their promises with cold cash. Any reclamation program is going to cost money, lots of it. Just the planning and design for such ongoing industrial and recreational uses will require hundreds of thousands of dollars. (Kaiser laid out that kind of cash just to prepare its infamous "garbage fill" proposal.)

The money for that initial reclamation effort must come from the same source which created the problem in the first place. The fair approach would seem to be the "tonnage tax" suggested by the Livermore planning commission, and supported by a City of Pleasanton representative.

The "bond" required by the county is little more than an insurance policy assuring the industry's follow-through on the very minimal standards set forth in those quarrying permits. Something much more is needed. We can start screaming and hollering for that industrial participation, or we can offer our excited plaudits as the extractors come forward on their own with a pledge to finance their reclamation program.

Which way do you want it, gentlemen?

Hindsight/ Foresight

The Man's 'patsy'

The Establishment's favorite patsy, the taxpayer, continues to take it in the neck.

In the following instances it comes from a couple of spendthrift Bay Area Rapid Transit District directors and the tab engendered by Lynette Fromme's abortive attempt on the life of President Ford.

The latest expense sheet ramblings of BART director Elmer Cooper were chronicled in The Times Thursday. The breakdown on what the Fromme trial will cost taxpayers came via an Associated Press article.

Cooper's expense account spending has prompted probes by two grand juries and state and federal tax agencies.

Now comes word, via a staff writer's thorough bird-dogging, that Cooper never used an airline ticket purchased with BART funds, yet took the $488 reimbursement himself.

And making l'affaire Cooper even more implausible is the conjecture that he (Cooper) has enough votes lined up to be elected president of the BART board next Thursday.

To paraphrase a comment made on the "Tomorrow" television show last week (directed at former president Richard Nixon and former veep Spiro Agnew), "we appear to have two practicing crooks as president and vice president." The original comment, made to a TV audience of perhaps 10 to 20 million, was made by John Henry Faulk.

Mr. Faulk's venomous remark, in this writer's view, cannot be excused, but the applying of same to Messrs. Cooper and Richard Clark seems entirely appropriate in light of disclosures by this newspaper and others in the Bay Area.

The continuing investigation of Cooper's expense reports disclose a billing of $575 "for postage" in a three-month period.

The airlines ticket in question, a United Airlines round - trip between San Francisco and Washington, D.C., was reportedly turned in July 15 for a refund. Cooper allegedly received a refund draft.

On the very same day, according to The Times staffer's investigation, Cooper was told by the U.S. Postal Service he would have to make good on $4,658.79 he had "bilked" the service out of by using a Milpitas labor union's non-profit bulk mailing permit. It was used to mail 117,000 pieces of campaign literature to San Francisco constituents during his campaign for election to the BART board last November.

Postal investigators allegedly have termed Cooper's claim of the mailing being done by United Automobile Workers Local 560 in Milpitas (under the title of UAW Local 560 for Elmer Cooper for BART Director) "illegal and the activity of a bogus committee."

The apparent irregularities go on and on ... as chronicled in The Times Thursday.

There is nothing irregular in the amounts rung up to give one Lynette Fromme a fair and impartial trial ... aside from the fact that it will prove damned expensive to taxpayers.

According to the AP dispatch, it'll cost the taxpayers over $55,000, including a $332 tab for jurors' coffee and donuts during deliberation.

That jury last week found the 27 - year - old Charles Manson follower guilty of attempting to assassinate President Ford Sept. 5 in Capitol Park.

Court officials said earlier this week the total did not yet include the cost of a flight by attorneys and Judge Thomas MacBride to Washington, D.C., to take a taped deposition from Ford on what he remembered about the incident.

Jurors' fees and mileage probably will cost about $16,640, U.S. District Court Clerk James Grindstaff said.

The 12 jurors also had a $6,850 bill during the 19 days they were sequestered in a downtown motel. Jurors' meals cost about $125 a day, according to U.S. Marshal Arthur Van Court.

Which is not bad when you consider what our legislators get.

Other costs included $15,870 for deputy marshals' overtime and other costs, and attorneys' fees.

We certainly DO NOT begrudge jurors' meal, lodging and incidental expense money. It just seems, though, that when some state or federal agency is involved in SETTING THE PRICE, they go hog wild.

And as proven through the years and right up to present day, there are plenty of unscrupulous types around to bend, stretch or just plain break the law in regard to expenses and "reimbursements."

The smog thickens

The other day this column offered some remarks on "The Great Smog Con of 1975." Part of that comment relied on a new study by the Livermore Lawrence Laboratory and which appeared to tell us that the valley's air pollution on a given day in 1973 was no worse than this basin experienced back in its pre-growth era.

One of the scientists who authored that report hastens to point out that "this was a one-day study only, and was not intended to reflect the air pollution pattern for an entire year." Had they chosen a day when the local smog factor was heavy, then the reverse conclusion could have been drawn.

Dr. Mike McCracken's information is helpful, but his projections in the entire field of air pollution reporting are not encouraging.

"All the LLL team was doing was building a model that gives some agency the ability to trace pollution patterns," Dr. McCracken says. The model works, he contends, but the information it yields is no greater than the time and talent and money poured into that system. To date there is no evidence that anyone, including the Bay Area Air Pollution Control District, is prepared to take full advantage of that LLL pilot program.

That has been the history of "smog reporting" down through the years. The information provided the public is piecemeal, often untested, and readily challenged by other "competent authority" which has some conflicting data. And if the scientists cannot agree where smog comes from, or even what it is, then what hope have the rest of us to make responsible plans in response to that information?

Looking back to that historic day in 1970 when the Environmental Protection Agency came into being, Dr. McCracken points out that Congress "didn't have a good feel for the problem when they wrote the law." We have heard others suggest that "Congress didn't know what the hell it was doing." Either way, we are stuck today with air pollution control standards which are "not too practicable, and in some areas not even enforceable."

The great campaign which resulted in modification of the gas-burning systems in most recent model American cars, now turns out to "alleviate one problem, while greatly aggravating another," Dr. McCracken explains.

That about sums up our "progress" in the air pollution field in the last ten years ... one step forward, two steps back.

Letters to The Times

Student scores

Editor, The Times:

Scores from the standardized state-wide reading tests given last Spring are now out. As usual, these scores are given in percentile rankings. A percentile ranking of 90, for example means your scores were better than 90 per cent of all the districts in the state.

Our Livermore school administrators are always quick to point out that our scores are above state average. However, the state includes San Francisco, Watts, and Oakland, Superintendant Croce's old district. A truer comparison is with districts of similar make-up, such as the other districts in the valley. When this is done, our scores are not at all good.

For example in the third grade reading, Murray scores in the 81st percentile; Pleasanton, 85th percentile; San Ramon, the 90th; Sunol in the 99th while Livermore is at the 62nd percentile.

In second grade reading, I don't have the San Ramon results, but the Pleasanton scores are in the 88th percentile; Murray the 95th; Sunol-is 99th, while Livermore is the lowest and is way back at the 71st percentile.

Our readings scores at the 12th grade level are comparable to Pleasanton, 78th and 76th percentile, respectively. However, both districts can take little consolation, since California nosedives below the nation as a whole.

What's responsible for this sorry state? Lack of money? Definitely not. San Francisco spends far more than the Valley districts, but is near the absolute bottom educationally.

The problem goes all the way to the top. Our superintendant, Mr. Croce, is very gifted in public relations, and he certainly can charm the school board and public alike. However, he has no real educational purpose in mind, and so neither does his organization.

I keep getting Mr. Croce's very expensive publication (about $1000 per issue) in the mail "Going Places Together." However, I don't like the direction he's taking us.

County center site

Editor, The Times:

There has been much controversy about the possible location of the East County Government Center on Mission Hill in Pleasanton. One potential problem with the site ... is the increased site development cost that may result because of the requirements of the Alquist-Priolo Geologic Hazard Zones Act of 1972. The Act requires among other things that " ... cities and counties shall not approve the location of (new real estate) development or structure (for human occupancy) within a delineated special studies zone if an undue geologic hazard would be create ..."

At least part of Mission Hill is within The Alquist-Priolo special study zone surrounding the Pleasanton fault. If development is to take place on that part of the hill which is within the special study zone, development costs may be much higher than anticipated because of the legaly required geologic and engineering studies.

In light of the proposed site's location relative to the Pleasanton fault and the fact that the county's own site evaluation study has recommended sites other than Mission Hill, it seems suspicious that the Board of Supervisors is persuing the acquisition of the site with such vigor.

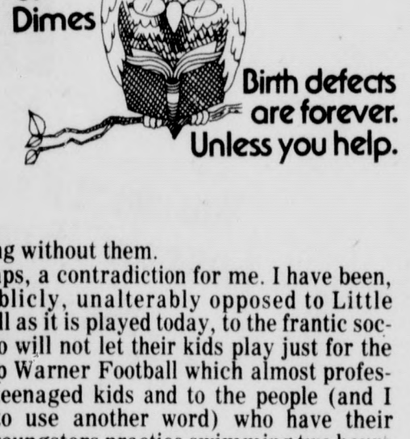
Miller vs. The Herald

Councilman Don Miller and the Tri Valley Herald are at it again. First the Livermore savant suggested that downtown property owners are not paying their fair share of property taxes. The TVH promptly attacked Miller's stand.

Now the outspoken councilman has issued a "paper" of his own, and in which he levels certain charges involving the assessed valuation of the downtown property leased by the Herald for its valley publications.

Suggesting that the Herald will decline to publicize his charges, Councilman Miller has asked "the other papers to let the public see the hilarious hypocricy of the Herald's writers."

The Times prefers to believe that the Herald will give the councilman's comments ample space, without our assistance. We have our own windmills to attack.



Sound and Fury

Walt Hecox

This column writing business is not by any stretch of the imagination a popularity contest and I am sure as hell not going to win one with what I have to say this morning, not even with the woman I love who usually accepts my remarks with good humor if not total agreement

No matter. When the new kid on the block who is invested with a little bit of power comes along and kicks an old timer in the teeth someone should have a word to say and I am just dumb enough to volunteer.

Kicked him in the teeth? Hell, he shattered his world if I know Fred Houston, not that it will be shattered for long.

Houston has the kind of guts he demanded in his football players, a commodity neither admired nor sought by some members of our rapidly deteriorating society.

I don't know Jim Henderson, the man who is presently the principal at San Ramon High school so I cannot comment on his character, but you can bet your sweet Post Toasties he did not pick up any Brownie points with me when he fired Houston from the job Fred has held for the past 16 years.

I do know Houston. He's tough, sometimes he's mean and he is stubborn. He is also one hell of a football coach. They, like newspapermen, are not in business to win a popularity contest.

It was back in the beginning of the Sixties that Houston took a crew of youngsters from Los Banos High School to a state championship or something like that.

Folks in Danville and San Ramon had a little pride in those days and their kids a little guts.

They had watched one crew of youngsters win a state track championship when the total population of San Ramon High school barely topped 100. That included girls, boys and maybe a passing sparrow.

Knowing a winner when they saw one they called Fred from that village on the east side of Pacheco Pass off Highway 152 and brought him to Danville.

That was language Fred understood and what he did was to produce winners. Naturally some qualities were required which would not make him popular with everyone with whom he came into contact.

"A football coach has got to be a dictator," John Madden told a group of us about a year ago. "There isn't any other way." No doubt Houston was a dictator. Delivering his swan song at the San Ramon High School this week he said, "My philosophy from the beginning and still is now, is to give 100 percent to any endeavor..."

You can bet that not only did Houston give 100 percent, but demanded as much from his football players.

And what, I would like to know, is wrong with that.

No doubt Houston was single-minded, determined and sometimes downright nasty while he drove his kids into doing the best possible job. Some of them no doubt hated his guts and there were some fine physical specimens who did not play on his teams because they were not willing to measure up to his standards.

"Not measure up?" did I say. Hell, let's call a spade a spade. They didn't have the guts to meet his standards.

It is to Houston's credit that he managed to win and continue winning without them.

This is, perhaps, a contradiction for me. I have been, though not publicly, unalterably opposed to Little League Baseball as it is played today, to the frantic soccer parents who will not let their kids play just for the hell of it, to Pop Warner Football which almost professionalizes sub-teenaged kids and to the people (and I was tempted to use another word) who have their eight-year-old youngsters practice swimming two hours a day.

There is a time in life when games should be fun and nothing more. Playgrounds should not become drill fields nor the old swimming hole devoted to a monotonous chore.

High school is where the men are slowly separated from the boys, where the kids of yesterday learn to face the problems of tomorrow.

Fred Houston, no matter whether you liked him or not, taught kids how to handle those problems, to think on their feet and to overcome adversity. He taught them to give a 100 percent effort all the time.

And what, I would like to know, is the matter with that.

If Houston's kids won, and they did, they won because they had been taught by him to give 100 percent of themselves and a little more If fewer of them were injured, and there were fewer, it was because his kids were in absolutely top condition.

If he was fired it was probably the result of the insistance and complaints of people whose kids did not have the guts to learn the lessons he taught so well. That is San Ramon's loss, not mine. All it teaches me is what I know already ... that more and more the guts of the people of this country are the texture of mashed potatoes and the core of this splendid nation decaying beneath the weight of people with souls of sponge rubber.

You're a good man, Fred Houston. I doubt I'll meet a better one in the San Ramon Unified School District.

round the town

I have sailed the Atlantic, in mid winter, aboard one of His Majesty's World War II tubs.

I flew co-pilot in a Stinson Voyager across the Cascades when the pilot didn't know what he was about, and I knew even less.

And there was that childhood era when we played tag across the tops of boxcars in the CN rail yard, and the first kid to fall straight down to the tracks below was declared the loser.

But none of that matches the experience gained by attending a scheduled meeting for the Board of Supervisors for Alameda County. It is really something else.

You can almost feel the tension of the audience as the appointed hour for those proceedings approaches. You can almost smell the boredom as the Sups take over.

"In God We Trust," is spelled out in relief behind those five chairs. God can be relieved that He is not there in person.

It is like watching some poor charade on the late-late show. Like some crazy dream where the characters up there are going through their motions, while the rest of you are down here, struggling to be heard. But to no avail.

There is a serious side, to be sure. But the supervisors ignore it. As though they don't want to be bothered with the facts. The counsel of the County Planning Commission and staff is long, and impressive, and promptly ignored. The planning director must feel like the Israel ambassador to the United Nations, pleading the cause of Zionism, with an Arab presiding over that assembly.

It is not that the Supervisors overpower anyone. They just kill you with indifference. Not a word. Not a sign that they are even listening. More often I suspect they aren't.

Supervisor Bort is among the most talkative of the bunch. But he doesn't really say anything. A smart quip or two. Mostly out of place. Laughs at his own joke. Then yawns when the other guy has the floor.

Supervisor Santana listens intently. Leaning forward in his chair. Any moment you expect him to come forth with something momentous. Forget it.

Cooper is chairman of the board. He seems to like the part. In fact he likes all the parts. Like Peter Sellers. Wishing everybody else on the set would get out of the way. Or just go home.

Chairman Cooper calls for the vote as though he already knows how the count will go. Perhaps he does. That's the way it is sometimes, in those high county chambers.

Tom Bates enters the room with the verve of a high school cheerleader. He also chews gum like one. But when the serious part of the proceedings are underway, Supervisor Bates removes his gum, and deposits it under the table. For safe keeping, I assume.

John D. Murphy is the senior member of the board, and looks it. He has the grey mane to mark his 16-plus years of servitude on that panel. I can recall when Murphy was the loquacious one. The board's mover and shaker. But his Mover seems to have been all shook. He now uses words as though they were tax dollars, to be spent ver-ry carefully.

As things move along (the item before the board was a silly little matter of digging a 160-acre hole in this valley's floor, 110 feet down, to yield a few million bucks in sand and gravel) the excitement on the floor builds.

Chairman Cooper was so excited that he would close his eyes to better contemplate those words, and leave them closed for the longest time.

"You are leaving this valley with a 3000-acre wasteland," said a fired-up member of the Livermore Planning Commission. Supervisor Bort yawned, Supervisor Cooper was still contemplating. Supervisor Bates was out of the room at that moment, and so missed the planning commissioner's remarks. When Bates returned, Supervisor Cooper left.

The speakers get the idea they are witnessing a game of musical chairs. At least that would be more fun.

No doubt the Board of Supervisors for Alameda County knows a great deal more about these matters than the people realize. But the people don't know that. They don't even know that the supervisors care.

But they do, THEY DO! It's just that the people get the wrong impression, from watching the sups in action.

Lighter Times

News that the post office may discontinue Saturday home delivery was greeted around our office with cries of "mail chauvinism."

The story was the second biggest of the day in one of our rival newspapers. I doubt it was worth that kind of play, but when newspapers need to fill a front page, they blow up small items. I was thinking of a way to rewrite the story so it would be a really hot item, something to compete with the best city council stories of the month. My version would have read something like this: "Huddling behind closed doors for more than two hours, the valley's three postmasters reached agreement yesterday on a position regarding Christmas mail.

"In the historic Valley Christmas Card Compromise, the postmasters agreed unanimously to take a forthright position urging early mailing of the season's greetings. Said one: 'At this point in time, we are observing quite a jam-up during the holiday season. Forthright disposal of your cards in the nearest mailbox, with properly affixed postage, would contribute greatly to the harmonious working and prompt efficiency of our branch of the federal service. Though America is not now at war, any potential enemy knows a weak postal system would be the soft underbelly of a national defense effort.' Too bad postmaster is not an elective position. With prose like that, I could run for the job.

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Some 40 years ago there was going to be an all-expert rubber bridge game at the Jacoby home. Harold Vanderbilt (the inventor of contract) was late and Mrs. Jacoby was drafted to play one rubber with her husband until the fourth arrived.

On what turned out to be the final hand of the rubber Jacoby improvised a bid that brought in an impossible grand slam for him. He sat North and was faced with the problem of what to bid over West's five-heart bid. He realized that if he could stop a heart lead his partner would wrap up seven spades. How could he stop it?

A cue bid followed by a seven-spade bid would be too obvious. Finally he solved his problem by just bidding seven spades.

It was up to West to lead. He thought and thought some more. Vanderbilt arrived while he was thinking and was told to stay away from the table until the hand was finished.

It didn't take long. West decided that North was surely void of hearts. He led the king of clubs and Mrs. Jacoby had no trouble making all the tricks.

Ask the Jacobys

A Michigan reader wants to know what to bid with: ♠ A Q 5 4 ♥ K J 3 2 ♦ 7 4 ♣ J 9 6 after your partner has doubled a one-diamond opening by your left hand opponent.

This is an easy one for modern bidders. Just cue bid two diamonds. You want to get to game somewhere. Make your partner bid a suit. He is likely to bid a major whereupon you raise him to game.

(Do you have a question for the experts? Write "Ask the Jacobys" care of this newspaper. The Jacobys will answer individual questions if stamped, self-addressed envelopes are enclosed. The most interesting questions will be used in this column and will receive copies of JACOBY MODERN.)

CARNIVAL

"I already put my order in with the wishbone on Thanksgiving, but I figure it doesn't hurt to make sure!"

SIDE GLANCES

"They don't eat much at these parties. They just munch hors d'oeuvres and nibble away at reputations!"

Locksmith Bud Appel and his wife Lyn examine the inventory of their new Dublin store. Appels saved and planned for more than three years before they could open their store last week.

More needed than wishful thinking

The Appel's dream came true

For many people the idea of starting their own business is a lifelong dream. But going into business takes a great deal more than wishful thinking, as Bud and Lyn Appel can tell you.

Their experience in starting AAA Locksmith in Dublin is typical of what is involved in opening up a small business.

U.S. statistics reveal that 50 per cent of the small businesses started will fold within four years. Going into business, the Small Business Association reports, is risky at best. But experts suggest you can better your chances if you understand what's involved and have sufficient funds and backing to get started.

John Strong, manager of the Livermore Chamber of Commerce, said, "The most important first step is to know your business." Have you worked before in a business like the one you want to start? Have you worked as a manager or had any business training in school?

"I worked for nine years as a locksmith in New York City before deciding to come to California," said Bud Appel. "But before I could begin business I had to find out what kinds of locks and keys are used out here. The sorts of things you run across in a city are likely to be different from those you'll find in a bedroom community."

An equally important, virtually indispensible, consideration is money. Do you know how much money you will need to get your business started? How's your credit? Do you have any reserve funds to live on until your business breaks even?

The Appels had to work for three years to save the money to start their locksmith shop. "There are so many things to consider. You need cash for your equipment, machinery, and inventory. The wholesale cost of keys has gone up 300 per cent in the last three years," said Appel.

"We have budgeted ourselves so that we can last for another 6 months to a year But it's hard to figure increases that will be sprung on you," said Lyn Appel.

Add to those expenses such things as rent, charges for maintenance and utilities, and telephone.

"The Yellow Pages has been a big expense. A less than one-quarter page ad costs us $55 per month. Tack on the regular phone bill and that's a very big item in our budget," Lyn said.

Tim Baldwin, banker and new president of the Dublin Chamber of Commerce, advises people thinking of going into their own business to be sure they have sufficient funds to get the store in shape, buy an inventory, and be able to sustain losses. "They should also have some capital of their own saved up before they attempt to apply for additional financing," Baldwin said.

"Very few companies will let you buy stock on credit," Appel said. "It's all cash-and-carry until you get yourself established. And even then it's hard to get started because the creditors want to know who's given you credit before. No one wants to be the first," he said.

The value of seeking expert advice cannot be overemphasized, according to Baldwin. "It's amazing. People will risk $30,000 or more to open a business, but won't spend $500 to talk to a financial consultant or an accountant."

Another important consideration is the market for your business. Does your area need your kind of business? Are there other businesses like your already in operation in your area?

"I had to check out the competition before I decided to open up," said Appel. "And I thought there was a need for a locksmith who will answer all calls. I advertize that I work 24 hours a day, and I can honestly say I work 24 hours a day."

Strong advises prospective business owners to check out the number and kinds of shops in the area. "Find out how the traffic goes on the street where you'd like to open. Stake out the location every day for a month or so. Actually walk up and down the street to see how things go," he said.

Consider, too, the legal requirements. What are the licenses, permits, or conditions necessary to start a business in your area? Are you required to hold property and liability insurance?

A lawyer, said Baldwin, should be able to help you here. County and local governments can advise you on what is needed.

Resources expert scornful of U.S. 'lack of initiative'

By JOHN CUNNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) — David Lilienthal's cool control belied his distress. "I'm mad as hell this morning," he said, rising from his desk and handing his listener a brief article clipped from the morning newspaper.

The story told of plans to erect near Belleville, Ill. a $237 million pilot plant for the conversion of coal to synthetic crude oil and "natural" gas. Government and private industry would split the initial costs.

"What in hell have we been doing these past 24 years," said Lilienthal, who as chairman of the Tennessee Valley Authority and first Atomic Energy Commission chairman, learned you must always be on guard against inertia.

He referred to Page 246, "Volume Three, The Journals of David E. Lilienthal," in which he describes the technology of coal conversion and relates that a private group was ready to build a much larger plant. That was in 1951.

The technology was available then, he said. Informed people knew an alternative to oil was desirable. An investment banking house, Eberstadt & Co., was willing to raise $400 million if assured by government of minimum prices.

"If we meant business that plant would have been built, and through private financing," he said. Other plants would have followed, costs would have fallen, and today we might have had a "very comfortable" alternative to foreign oil.

Now, in the midst of crisis, he said, we finally get moving on a much smaller plant. There was bite but not scorn in his quiet voice. "There is a timidity, a lack of resolution in the decision centers," he said deliberately.

For the past 20 years Lilienthal, 76, has headed his own company, Development and Resources Corp., a unique concern that combines private enterprise and public goals in the large scale, integrated development of natural resources.

One glittering example is the Kkhuzetan Province of Iran, as large as Illinois, whose land and people were made to blossom by the development of water power, electricity, irrigation, farming, industry, health care facilities and education.

You don't get things done by writing reports, said Lilienthal, briefly recalling his TVA days, when he learned that nothing fails like disbelief and that action itself, even in a small way, always is more convincing than talk.

"We're constipated by reports," he said. In his opinion we're also paralyzed by negativism, and embued with an attitude unbecoming Americans, that problems are too big to handle.

"Our leaders, public and private, are timid and slow and this becomes contagious," he said.

"We're holding ourselves back. If we let ourselves go, we have the human energy and resources to do anything we want to do. Human energy distinguishes this country." This nation, he said, is underdeveloped, yet we act as if we can do no more.

"Energy is a basic characteristic of a country," he said. "If you've got it in the people, they produce the electricity and the gas — and the food and the rest of the country's needs."

He stopped abruptly, fearful, he said, that people might think he was preaching. Preaching and moralizing, you gathered, were about as useless to him as computer printouts that never were read.

Another 'nozzle' hearing slated

Lesher News Bureau

SAN FRANCISCO — Bay Area gas station operators will have another chance to ask for more time before special nozzles are required on their fuel pumps.

The board of directors of the Bay Area Air Pollution Control District has passed a regulation requiring vapor recovery nozzles at service stations in the nine-county Bay Area.

But the board voted Wednesday to hold a hearing to consider moving the deadline back to Jan. 7.

Station operators meanwhile will face seven days of potential violations if they don't have the nozzles installed or a variance from the district.

Don Mortara, a Union dealer in Concord, said he had been using the nozzles for two weeks.

"There is no way possible to get 90 per cent of the emissions from cars coming into the station," he said.

The nozzles are intended to capture 90 per cent of the vapor that escapes when a car is filled with gasoline.

Jim Campbell, representing the Northern California Service Station Association, said no one had come up with an effective nozzle yet.

"We want a nozzle that will do the job," he said.

Campbell claimed that the vapor recovery nozzles won't fit 50 per cent of the 1975 and 1976 model automobiles.

He said the association was willing to set up test stations in Antioch and Oakland to show officials the difficulty involved.

"We'll lower the price of gas seven cents a gallon just to bring people in and show you it doesn't work."

Board member Thomas Bates, Oakland, said "This whole thing has become a can of worms.

"We're getting ourselves into a terrible box."

Milton Feldstein, deputy district control officer, said stations having problems should ask the district for a variance from the regulations.
